County gets juvenile justice grant

By AARON ALDRIDGE
Staff Writer

Sullivan County has been awarded a $31,246 planning grant to review gaps in the existing juvenile justice system.

The grant was awarded by the New Hampshire Division of Juvenile Justice Services to fund a group consisting of juvenile justice officials and treatment providers to develop a consensus on additional needs within the juvenile justice system.

"This is a great opportunity to continue to advance the services provided to youth in Sullivan County," Sullivan County Manager Ed Gil de Rubio.

The county will be eligible for two years of additional funding for a pilot project through the planning grant.
